Pittsfield, MA: Local professional certified coach, Karen O'Donnell (PCC) will be working with numerous attendees at the Massachusetts Conference for Women (MCFW) Thursday, December 4, assisting them with career concerns, management issues and personal challenges. In its third year the MCFW has asked certified coaches through the International Coach Federation New England Chapter (ICFNE) to be the sole provider of complimentary coaching sessions, in the "Coaches Corner," located on-site the day of the Conference, for interested attendees.

The sold-out conference, hosting 10,000 attendees, features over 100 speakers, including keynotes with: First Lady, Senator, and U.S. Secretary of State, Hillary Rodham Clinton; Academy-award winning actress, Lupita Nyong'o; CEO and Designer, Tory Burch; Global Chief Strategist and Marketing Officer for Bank of America, Anne Finucane; and Co-founder and Creative Optimist of the Life is Good company, John Jacobs.

Professional, accredited coaches like Karen O'Donnell will provide participants with the opportunity for one-on-one "speed coaching" sessions to take what they have learned at the Conference and make it applicable to their personal situations. The conference takes place Thursday, December 4 at the Boston Convention & Exhibition Center.

Karen O'Donnell is a long-time resident of Richmond, MA and a certified coach and HR professional. She worked at GE Plastics and other GE divisions before launching her coaching business here in the Berkshires 2 years ago.

The Conference is celebrating its 10th anniversary and 3rd anniversary of its partnership with ICFNE and the provision of certified coaches for attendees. The ICF is a non-profit and the leading global organization dedicated to advancing the coaching profession through both personal and business coaching. ICFNE is the fourth largest ICF chapter in the world. ICFNE supports coaches and contributes to the advancement of the coaching profession in the New England Area.
